The BlueBadge is for the most hardcore players. "Badges" earned in this game are achievements earned in gameplay in the form of game-related badges. The BlueBadge is the first badge, and is the first major milestone the player must reach before the player can receive the PurpleBadge. It is the only badge that gives a player the option of placing a picture of the player's pets (such as a custom pet) on the player's user profile. In the Wii version, players can place their own avatar, the dog from the Wii Motion Plus, in their user profile. The player may choose either a male or female avatar. Upon earning this badge, the player's user profile will now display a BlueBadge, and will display the BlueBadge image on the right side of the screen. Players who have purchased and registered for a Nintendo DSi account will have the option to purchase a digital copy of their Wii account, which will also register their Nintendo DSi system for use with the Nintendo 3DS. In order to transfer Wii Points from the 3DS, players must first obtain their Wii Points from the Nintendo 3DS. The badge is earned when the player reaches a certain total of kills in the game. The player's total is recorded on the bottom of the main screen. Wii Zapper It was also introduced in the game to help those who find difficulties in hunting down the vermin. Players were allowed to use the Zapper to stun vermin. The Zapper can be purchased for a small amount of Wii Points. Items The game has a variety of items which can be purchased from the Nintendo eShop. Some of these items are exclusive to the game, whereas others can be bought on the Wii Shop Channel. There are five types of item available in the game: Kills There are a large variety of items that could be purchased. Each item consists of an item's name, the item's "rating", the item's "level" (the level of difficulty required to achieve the item), the item's price in Wii Points, and the item's description. Wii Shop Channel The Wii Shop Channel is a virtual shop on the Wii home console and is accessed through the Nintendo Wii system's GameCube and Wii remotes, and through the Wii console's GameCube game pad. It is available only in the United States. The Wii Shop Channel is one of four Nintendo 82157476af
